THREE GROUPS STRUGGLE IN G. O. P. RACE

One Group Is Absolutely Opposed to Any Candidate of Administration

DEMOCRATS FOR SMITH Governor's Strength Causes G. O. P. to Seek Strongest Possible Ticket

BY DAVID LAWRENCE Copyright 1928 Post Pub. Co.

Washington—The Republican presidential race has developed into a contest among three outstanding groups—those who are friendly to Secretary Hoover but who prefer President Coolidge, those who insist that the president would decline if nominated and hence Secretary Hoover should be chosen, and those who are absolutely opposed to any administration candidate.

The Democratic race is almost entirely centered on Governor Smith, who appears already to have sufficient votes to force the necessary two-thirds in the early balloting at Houston.

Appraisals of the strength of Governor Smith as a vote-getter have had their effect on Republican leaders, who declare that this is not a year for a dark horse or a compromise candidate but a year for the strongest possible ticket.

The position that President Coolidge will play in the whole Republican situation is as yet undetermined, though members of the cabinet are positive in their declarations that Mr. Coolidge would not accept if nominated. They admit they have nothing on which to base this theory except the implication of his previous statement. In any event, Mr. Coolidge's official family are not doing a thing to advance his candidacy, but, on the other hand, is trying in every way to discourage consideration of his name.

CAL STILL SILENT

So far as is known Mr. Coolidge has not discussed with a single person the hypothetical question of whether he would accept if finally drafted. No explanation has been given as to his silence, but it is significant that the Hoover supporters are construing his silence as meaning that he will at the proper time say the necessary word of declination.

Mr. Coolidge is deeply interested in the platform and of course would feel hurt if the convention nominated any candidate who was opposed to the Coolidge policies, including the McNary-Haugen vote.

Republican leaders are somewhat in a quandary about the president's participation in the councils of the party at this time. They would like to consult him more, inasmuch as his policies and his record will have to be defended at the polls. But at the same time they realize that Mr. Coolidge wishes to be free from any criticism that he dictated the choice of the convention or that he used his office to promote the candidacy of any member of his official family.

SEE HOOVER WIN Opinion differs of course, as to who the ultimate choice will be, but in the administration group there is at the moment a feeling that Secretary Hoover will win out. This means that draft talk has been continuously squelched in administration quarters.

Outside of Washington, however, the reports of a sentiment for the drafting of President Coolidge are based upon what the party in convention has assembled might do apart from any wish that Mr. Coolidge might have in the matter.

Naturally in Washington the average officialholder is not likely to go counter to the wishes of the president and a good many of the people here recognize that the constant talk of drafting Mr. Coolidge is only another method of aiding those who are anxious to stop Secretary Hoover.

In deed the drift to Secretary Hoover runs strongly in the capital, particularly in the executive branch of the government. If President Coolidge is to be drafted, the impetus will have to come from outside the official group altogether.

Two Rivers has had commission government for slightly more than three years.

Donnelly will take office June 15.

CONSIDER POST OF SHAWANO-CO SHERIFF OPEN

Zimmerman Expected to Appear Tomorrow After Considering Applicants

Madison—(U)—Governor Zimmerman considers the post of Sheriff James P. George, Shawano, vacant, in view of that officer's resignation, and will appoint a successor when he has determined upon a man that meets the qualifications. This was the information in the governor's office Tuesday morning.

The governor was not at his desk, he being in attendance at a funeral, but his attaches said they were familiar with this attitude.

George, who was missing from his post, for several days on two occasions, submitted a conditional resignation to the county board, the governor learned. This resignation was to be made effective upon his failure to come up to the expectations of the county officers, and it was submitted to the county board and accepted after the last time the sheriff avoided his duties, the county officers previously advised Governor Zimmerman.

The governor upon hearing of the resignation being accepted, was asked to appoint another sheriff. This he has had under consideration.

Mr. Zimmerman Tuesday had not officially received the "former" sheriff's announcement that his resignation was submitted without his consent or approval, but it was expected that he will either continue to consider George as resigned, or hear charges made against him by the District Attorney, R. H. Fischer. Mr. Fischer has conferred with the governor on the matter.

IOWA GOVERNOR WINS PARTY FAVOR EASILY

Des Moines, Iowa—(U)—Amassing a lead of nearly three to one over former state senator M. L. Bowman of Waterloo, his nearest opponent in Monday's primary election Gov. John Hammill of Britt was renominated by the Republican party in Iowa for a third time.

Gov. Hammill out-distanced a field of three candidates pollowing 146,431 votes out of 241,537 cast in 1,497 of the state's 2,450 precincts tabulated early Tuesday. The Hammill majority on the basis of these returns represented 65.5 percent of the vote cast.

COOLIDGE ANSWERS ZIMMERMAN LETTER

Peking Awaits Arrival Of Nationalist Troops

BULLETIN

Peking—(U)—A Chinese official representative Chiang Kai Shek, commander in chief of the Nationalist army, arrived in Peking Tuesday.

He will visit the foreign legations Wednesday to guarantee on behalf of Chiang Kai Shek that there will be no danger to foreign life or property when the Southern troops take over the city.

The main body of the third and fourth army corps of the Northern army evacuated Peking Tuesday. They are stated to be disarmed and have been housed in several villages near Tangchow to the west of Peking.

Peking—(U)—Chang Hsueh-Liang, eldest son of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the former northern dictator, was en route to Mukden, Manchuria, Tuesday in response to news of the bombing of his father's special train.

Peking was calm Tuesday save for isolated cases of looting which resulted in the summary execution of several of those guilty.

Because of the many disorders from the Mukden army of Chang Tso-Lin, the Nationalist government has been wary about the northern side of the city, the gates of Peking were ordered closed Tuesday morning.

Hoover Wins First Fight For Convention Delegates

Kansas City—(U)—Riding on the wave of victories in the first of the delegate contests decided by the Republican national committee, Herbert Hoover's backers squared away Tuesday to put additional punch in their drive for the presidential nomination in the face of a determined opposition that is passing the word it has just begun to fight.

The Republican convention, after a long season of political speculation, will get down to business a week from Tuesday.

Success Monday in placing eleven southern delegates, whose credentials had been challenged, definitely in the Hoover camp bolstered the optimism of the commerce secretary's political lieutenants.

On the other hand, both the Lowden and Watson campaign directors, already on the firing line, were mapping out a plan of attack with which they hoped to stop Hoover.

Lowden himself is coming to town the last of the week to give personal attention to his campaign. In the meantime his political fortunes here are in the keeping of Clarence F. Duck, manager of his presidential fight.

LIONS ELECT MINISTER AS NEW GOVERNOR

Rev. M. S. Webber, Manitowoc, Unanimously Selected at Morning Session

Nomination of candidates for governor of the twenty-seventh district of Lions clubs in convention here Tuesday morning turned into an election when the delegates vociferously insisted on casting the unanimous ballot for the conference for the Rev. M. S. Webber, Manitowoc, the only nominee.

The election was scheduled for this afternoon but when only one candidate was placed in nomination it was decided to elect him forthwith. The new governor served the district as deputy governor this year and succeeds Giles H. Putnam of New London.

Rivalry between Milwaukee and Oshkosh for the 1929 convention was a head to head this afternoon when the next conference city is selected. Delegations from the two cities have been vigorously campaigning and a close vote is expected.

Mr. Webber was placed in nomination by E. J. Clark, of Webber's neighboring city of Two Rivers. "When our forest are gone we might as well pull down our churches and discontinue our religious beliefs," Mr. Smith told the men. "Conservation is my religion and I don't care my convictions," the speaker declared. He explained he had no use for politicians or men who were in the great move of reforestation and conservation for money.

"Every true Wisconsin resident should pull for Mr. Smith and make it his fight," Mr. Smith went on to say. "Our conservation commission is doing things and will continue to do things, to see that in the future coming generations can enjoy those privileges we enjoyed."

Mr. Smith hoped the local chapter of Izaak Walton League, and made a most enjoyable summer.

MUSOLINI TELLS OF ITALY'S PEACE PLANS

Rome—(U)—Premier Mussolini made his promised speech before the senate Tuesday on Italy's relations with the other powers and his government's foreign policy.

The early part of his speech was devoted to describing the good relations which Italy enjoys with the nations of Asia, Africa, and the United States and Great Britain.

While the premier played softly and the attention of the audience focused on the screen, two unmasked men stole into the office of C. J. Murray, the second floor where A. C. Dumont, assistant manager, and Mr. Alvin Hagan, cashier, were going over the receipts.

While the bandits lined the two up against the wall, the telephone rang and one of the bandits answered. Apparently it was a call for the manager.

He is not at leisure now," the bandit told the caller, and then parked the telephone out.

Without further delay the bandits grabbed a tin box containing the cash and fled.

JURORS URGE RELEASE FROM ALL LIABILITY

Emil Schumann Free on Bail to Attend Funeral of His Father

Although a coroner's jury recommended that Emil Schumann, Jr., 18, Greenville, be discharged from all liability in connection with the death of his father, Emil Schumann, Sr., District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf Tuesday morning issued a warrant charging the boy with manslaughter.

Mr. Lonsdorf said Tuesday he didn't want the responsibility of turning the boy free but that he wanted this responsibility to rest with the judge after he heard the facts.

The boy was arraigned before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court shortly before noon Tuesday and his preliminary hearing was set for May 13. Bonds of $1,000 were furnished and the boy was released so he could attend the funeral of his father Tuesday afternoon.

The elder Schumann died at St. Elizabeth hospital Saturday afternoon as the result of a basal skull fracture, caused by a blow on the head from a broom wielded by his son, Emil Schumann, Jr., who struck without malice in defense of his mother and was recommended by the coroner from all liability in connection with the death.

It developed during the testimony that no one actually saw Emil strike his father with the broom. Mrs. Schumann testified that she didn't know Emil struck his father until the latter turned to the boy. Gracie, the ten-year-old son who summoned Emil when the father attacked the mother, told how he waited in the yard because he was afraid to go back in the house.

Mr. Schumann said her husband had frequent fits of temper but that he soon became calm and then was sorry. She said he was continually complaining because the boys and she did not do their work to suit him.

The trouble started at breakfast, table on Saturday morning when Mr. Schumann accused Emil of not doing his work properly. There were some words between the son and father, Mrs. Schumann said, and then the boy went into the yard to load the milkcans on the truck. Mr. Schumann said this was the third time her husband attacked her.

After Emil left the house Mr. Schumann started fighting with his wife, accusing her of being slovenly in her housework. She became angry, she said, and threw a broom at him but with so little force that it fell at his feet.

BANDITS GET $326 IN BADGER THEATRE

Holdup Three in Manager's Office in Milwaukee as Fans Watch Screen

Milwaukee—(U)—While 2,000 movie fans watched a screen thriller at the Oriental theatre, two bandits entered the manager's office and held up the cashier and escaped with $326 Monday night.

With the organ playing softly and the attention of the audience focused on the screen, two unmasked men stole into the office of C. J. Murray, the second floor where A. C. Dumont, assistant manager, and Mr. Alvin Hagan, cashier, were going over the receipts.

While the bandits lined the two up against the wall, the telephone rang and one of the bandits answered. Apparently it was a call for the manager.

Without further delay the bandits grabbed a tin box containing the cash and fled.

TWO AMERICAN WOMEN IN RACE ACROSS OCEAN

Amelia Earhart, Mable Boll Anxious to Be First of Sex to Fly Atlantic

New York—(U)—A race between two American women for the honor of being the first to fly the north Atlantic was in prospect Tuesday.

With Miss Amelia Earhart waiting at Trepassey, N. F., for a takeoff in the seaplane Friendship, Miss Mable Boll was making hurried preparations at Curtis field for a take-off in Charles A. Levine's trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia.

Although Miss Boll announced she would take off Tuesday indications at the field were that a take-off would not be possible for some time. Mr. Levine said it would be several days, making Miss Boll's hopes dependent on a delay in the Friendship's attempt.

Unofficially it was said that Oliver C. Le Boutillier of East Orange, N. J., would be in the pilot's seat if and when a take-off was made.

Trepassey, N. F.—(U)—The Folkner monoplane Friendship in which Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston and her two male companions hope to cross the Atlantic was buffeted by strong northwest winds here Tuesday which made plans for completion of fueling impossible.

Seven more tanks of gasoline remained to be poured into the plane's reservoirs. The flies announced the take-off, which Monday night seemed likely upon completion of the fueling operation, had been postponed. Aside from the wind the weather was clear and fine.

An indication that the Friendship might fly beyond England was given by Miss Earhart, Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanic Louis Gordon in conversation here Tuesday morning. They said that their plans for a land, sea and air trip around the world, which they hoped to make a longer flight than any of their predecessors over this route.

At 8 a. m. Eastern Daylight time, the wind was still too strong for a start. The visibility was perfect. Every precaution was taken to make the flight as safe as possible. The plane has three motors, any two of which will keep it in flight. It has been given extensive tests lasting over a period of seven weeks as to fuel consumption, lifting capacity and air speed. It is equipped with pontoons and carries two radio sets. An emergency one can be operated even if the plane is forced down, and the motors are fireproof.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE FILES AGAINST HUBER

Madison—(U)—R. L. Marcus, Muskego, filed suit in Dane County circuit court late Monday afternoon against Henry A. Huber, Stoughton, lieutenant governor, and progressive delegate-elect to the Republican national convention, demanding that Huber's credentials be withheld and given to Marcus.

This suit is based on allegations of irregularities in the vote by which Mr. Huber was declared elected. Mr. Marcus claims that he received 12,013 votes from William H. Vanderhill in the election of 1927 for Mr. Huber. The canvassing board, which recounted the disputed votes, returned 11,567 for Huber and 11,393 for Marcus. Mr. Marcus claims that these returns are erroneous as there were more names on the voters list than the total of these two votes.

Last Minute Bulletins

Preston, Minn.—(U)—The prospect of a June wedding induced Louis M. Klass, formerly of Sioux Falls, Iowa, and wanted for the $30,000 robbery of the National Bank of Vinton, Ia., August, 1927, to surrender here Tuesday.

Klass also is charged with robbing the First National Bank of Springfield, Minn., of $15,000 last May. He plans to get married this month. Alimony was left to be adjusted by an agreement between the parties.

Kansas City—(U)—The Hoover forces continued to hold a whip hand in the Republican national committee Tuesday, sealing as the four convention delegates at large from Louisiana a state sponsored by Emil Rieve, national committeeman and an avowed supporter of the commerce secretary.

Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, took the stand on his own defense Tuesday in the district supreme court, where he is being tried on charges of refusing to answer questions put to him in the senate committee investigation of the Continental Trading Co.

REPORT MORE SIGNALS FROM ITALIA CREW

Several Soviet Stations Here S O S but Searchers at Kings Bay Are Skeptical

Moscow—(U)—The Soviet meteorological station in Siberia reported Tuesday that it had picked up what was believed to be an S O S from the missing dirigible Italia, but that the location could not be ascertained. Two other Siberian stations, S O B and P U R, reported hearing the same call.

The Soviet rescue commission, which is planning to send an expedition to Franz Josef land to seek the missing dirigible Italia, was further convinced Tuesday that General Nautilus had descended at that place by reports of new wireless messages picked up as late as 7:55 Monday night thought to be directly from the Italia.

Advices received from Murmansk Tuesday said that a message from the Italia announcing her descent on Franz Josef land had been picked up by the wireless station at Obdorsk, Tobolsk, Siberia.

The traveler Louthinskoff of the Murmansk coast, also reported hearing calls believed to be from the Italia but that she was unable to pick up actual communication because of atmospheric interference.

SEARCHERS SKEPTICAL King's Bay, Spitzbergen—(U)—Reports from Russia that wireless messages had been picked up from the dirigible Italia stating that she had landed on Franz Josef land are meeting with much skepticism among the searchers at King's Bay.

The theory supported by Lieutenant Louthinskoff, Norwegian flier who is in charge of the expedition, is that the Italia descended on the polar ice north of Spitzbergen and that there was very little chance she was blown to Franz Josef land.

INSPECT ITALIAN CRAFT Milan, Italy—(U)—Major Madella, who will be in command of the Italian expedition which will search the Arctic wastes for the missing dirigible Italia, went to the aircraft plant at Sesto Calende Tuesday and inspected the expedition's flying boat one of the Savoia-Marchetti type. The plane has been thoroughly outfitted with special protection against the cold and has been installed and the surface of the radiator reduced in order to allow the pilot greater visibility.

It was estimated that the plane has a cruising radius of some 1,215 miles. Her wireless set was successfully tested and established communication with the island of Rhodes some 1,150 miles from Milan.

The first halt will be made at Zurich, Switzerland, about 150 miles from Milan.

SEEKING BEST SITE AT SUVA FOR TAKEOFF

1,700-mile Jump to Brisbane Shortest, but Is Considered Most Hazardous

SECURE LONG REST Men Reveal Fact That Terrific Storm on Hawaii Flight Had Them Worried

Suva, Fiji Island—(U)—Having successfully traversed approximately 5,338 miles of ocean between Oakland, Cal., Hawaii and Suva, the fliers of the monoplane Southern Cross Tuesday started preparations for the next 1,700 mile hop to Brisbane, enroute to Sydney, Australia.

They secured a long rest Tuesday night to make up for the more than three wakeful, tempestuous, anxiety-fraught hours that were passed during their flight from Kaula, an island of the Hawaiian group, to Suva.

There were many things to be done; checking of the gasoline supply remaining in the fuel tanks of the Southern Cross; locating of a site from which the refueled plane can take off safely for its flight over the sea toward Australia; examination of the three motors that labored faithfully through miles and storms and to study weather charts and maps to decide the time and course of the shortest, but perhaps the most hazardous leg of the unprecedented flight.

Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian pilot; Charles Ulm, Australian co-pilot; Harry W. Lyon, former sea skipper and navigator and James Warner, radio operator, were regarded as quite important persons in Suva. These were the objects of admiration by all. From 12:30 to 1:30 a. m. the four men who flew in from the sea Tuesday afternoon in the strange powerful blue and silver bird of cloth, wood and steel were centers of attraction wherever they went.

One of the most important problems before the fliers was to select a take-off point. Albert Park, where the Southern Cross landed Monday afternoon, was barely large enough to accommodate the plane on its arrival. Unwieldy by a large store of gasoline, the pilots missed running into the side of the inclosure but ran 20 yards and then only by making a sharp left turn up into a rise of ground.

Taking off with 900 gallons of gasoline and oil, the amount estimated required for the flight to Australia, will require a straight, lengthy runway heading into the wind. Kingsford-Smith intimated that he intended looking over a stretch of beach near the city, a sandy, level bit of ground that might accommodate the plane during low tide. Possibly, he thought, there might be other places even more suitable.

The fliers did not try to conceal the fact that the storm had them worried. Kingsford-Smith declared that he hoped it would not come to fly through such weather again in a thousand years.

The course between Suva and Australia, although a comparatively short leg of the trans-Pacific flight, is considered by many here as being particularly dangerous at this time of the year. The sea is very stormy, peculiar to the south-seas are known to sweep the seas during the summer months when cool air currents swinging north clash with tropical currents and the results are mighty, swirling gales.

FLYERS CONFIDENT

But the fliers who successfully crossed the sea between Oakland and Hawaii and between Hawaii and Suva were confident that they would not fail.

With 34 hours and 35 minutes required for the flight from Hawaii, the Southern Cross had a total flying time of 62 hours and one minute for the first two legs of the 7,500 odd miles to Sydney. She covered the 2,300 miles from Oakland Cal. to Wheeler Field, Honolulu in 27 hours and 25 minutes. Thus far she has averaged about 89 miles an hour.

After the hop to Brisbane, the aviators face a flight of about 800 miles to Sydney.

75 ARRAIGNED FOR DRY AMENDMENT VIOLATIONS

Milwaukee—(U)—Charged with liquor law violations, 75 persons were arraigned before Judge F. A. Geiger, in federal district court this week and nearly 200 more are to be called.

Many of those sentenced Monday were arrested in raids last summer. Those sentenced Monday afternoon included:

Max Huebner, Fond du Lac, six months and $200; Otto Dove, Fond du Lac, six months and $250 and his bartender, Victor Jacky, $200.

Nick Ellis, Fond du Lac, six months and $250 and his bartender, C. F. Kelly, $100; Edwin Gohl, Plymouth, six months and $250; Andrew Brant, six months and $250; John Feresh and Frank Groth, both fined $250.

Those who pleaded not guilty included William Wunderlich of Plover. The case will be called for trial June 18.

CATLIN OFFERS PLAN FOR ELIMINATION OF TROUBLESOME SUBWAY

Alderman Thinks Abandoned Interurban Roadbed Could Be Made into Highway

Utilization of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company, right-of-way from N. Rankin-st through to E. Wisconsin-ave as a roadway to take traffic off Pacific-st is being advocated by Alderman Mark Catlin and discussed among members of the city council. Alderman Catlin contends that the roadway will make unnecessary any further thought of the E. Wisconsin-ave subway, a project the alderman has fought for some time.

The property referred to by Mr. Catlin is understood to belong to the power company having been purchased outright several years ago. However, the full width of the right of way could not be used because several feet on the left side of the stretch belongs to the Chicago and Northwestern railway company. There is a gradual grade from Rankin-st to where the right of way enters onto E. Wisconsin-ave.

The highway, if completed, would materially reduce traffic on E. Pacific-st, a situation which admittedly must be solved soon, according to aldermen who like the idea. The Pacific-st bridge is in precarious condition and is subjected to continual heavy traffic which will probably be replaced. Another reason the plan is approved is that the extension of the street would mean only one sharp turn to get a motorist on Wisconsin-ave and highway 41 whereas the Pacific-st route has several dangerous turns and bends.

Opponents of the subway also see in the plan solving of one of the problems presented by proponents of the project. Their contention has been that a subway is needed to take care of traffic on 41 which otherwise will have to cross the railroad tracks twice. Persons opposed to the subway contend traffic can be taken care of without sending it over any tracks. If the proposed road extension is made.

COOLIDGE'S LODGE IN WILD COUNTRY

Fire Warden Will Have Reserved Seat to Watch President and Party

Brule—(P)—A forest of Jack pine looks down from the hilltop which it crowns upon the summer White House of Cedar Island Lodge, to be occupied this season by President Calvin Coolidge.

In his watch tower, H. E. Pevey, whom the state has charged with keeping fire out of that timber region, will have a reserved seat for observing the activities of the president and his party.

Surrounding the island lodge are 4,000 acres of state-owned lands, a rolling, hilly country, covered with second-growth timber, with here and there a stand of large trees which have escaped the woodman's saw or the devastation of forest fire.

An area, 640 acres in extent, has been set aside by the state as the Brule River forest park. Its boundaries come within five miles of the executive summer residence.

"Through the woods of the state park roam deer and other wild game, its streams abound in beaver and fish. There is nothing of the summer resort in the appearance of the state park. The only improvements put there by the state are minor accommodations for hunters and fishermen who are willing to camp out in the wild. There also is a state fish hatchery here.

It is a wild, scenic, and impressive country. The Brule river, not more than 4 feet wide here, flows with a gentle current northward, with just enough force to make canoeing or boating easy, and not sufficient to be dangerous.

The state has added to the natural second timber growth of the state park by planting in it approximately 400,000 trees. President Coolidge will probably not get to see a forest fire in action during his stay here. The season when fires are most prevalent is late fall and early spring before the leaves have come out on the trees.

If a fire should occur in the timber, Warden Pevey and his assistants are well organized to control it before it could spread and cause much damage. From one of the lookout towers, the first blaze would be detected and word of its approach relayed to all regular and temporary fire fighters before it could endanger Cedar Island Lodge.

COOLIDGE SELECTION FOR VACATION COMES AS SURPRISE TO EAST

"Prophets" Attach Political Importance to Decision to Vacation Here

Washington—President Coolidge's decision to summer in Wisconsin came as a surprise to everyone in the east, and Wisconsin because of its political independence, and now are finding additional cause in the preference expressed for the scenic and climatic advantages of the Badger State by the undisputed good judgment of the President.

While Wisconsin was chosen primarily because of its natural advantages of course, political prophets attach to the President's choice some political importance.

HOLD SHORT COURSE FOR SOCIAL WORKERS

A short course in community recreation leadership is to be offered under the direction of the University Extension division of the University of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Conference of social workers at the Wisconsin high school, Madison, June 25 to July 6, according to H. M. Gorrows, field representative of the extension division.

The course will be open to all community leaders interested in community recreation and to others as a convenient opportunity to improve their own ability and widen their knowledge of community recreation methods. NEENAH H. S. ALUMNI MEMBERS PLANNING FOR GOLDEN JUBILEE

Graduates of Years Ago Will Be Present at Banquet to Be Held June 15

Neenah—Twelve members of the Neenah Alumni association, among the first to graduate from the high school here, are to be honored guests at the fifty-first annual banquet Friday evening, June 15. While the association is 51 years old, this celebration is to be known as the golden jubilee event.

The first class to graduate was in 1877 and Miss Minnie Githens, Mrs. Nellie Herrick, Hutchins and Mrs. Del Brown Healy were members who will be at the banquet. Others to graduate with that class of nine members were Miss Della Boardman, Miss Jessie Cooke, Miss Marian Ford, Miss E. L. Evans, Miss Fannie Wheeler and John Tullar. They have since married and bear other names.

Miss Anna Proctor is the only member of the class of 1878 now residing here. There are none of the 1879 class here. Miss Emma Wheeler and Miss Louise Lachman were members of the 1880 class and Mrs. M. E. Barnett is the only Neenah resident who graduated with the class of 1882. Miss Jenny Harris, Miss Jean Frazer, Mrs. T. J. Pinkerton, Miss Ella Law and Frank Kellogg, Sr., are others who graduated in the '80's who will attend the banquet.

The earlier classes met annually but had no constitution under which to function. The constitution now in use was adopted in 1907. Mrs. Willis Fenton was the first president and Mrs. John L. Lott was the first secretary and treasurer.

Elaborate arrangements are being made by the committee in charge of the banquet, the program for which has not yet been completed. Short talks will be given by some of the earlier Alumni members to graduates of whom the classes numbered not more than 11 members. The class of 1928, which will be entertained at the banquet, has a membership of 60 young men and women.

GIRL ALONE

BY ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED

The summer she is 16, SALLY FORD, ward of the state orphanage for 12 years, is "fanned out" to CLEM CARSON. She meets DAVID NASH, athlete and student who is working on the farm for the summer. Carson makes remarks about David's friendship with Sally and the student strikes him a crushing blow.

Sally and David flee and join a carnival. David as coach and Sally in a showgirl disguise as "Princess Lalla," crystal gazer. NITA, hula dancer, who is infatuated with David, makes life miserable for Sally, threatening to expose her to the police.

In Capital City, where Sally spent so many years in the orphanage, she is recognized when the little orphan troop in GUS, the Barker, comes to her rescue and diverts attention. Sally is fascinated with the beautiful "Lady Bountiful," hostess to the children. She is surprised to see her stop and talk with a well-dressed Eastern man who earlier in the afternoon has teasingly read Sally's fortune in the crystal and asked her to have supper with him. She hears them discuss New York and call each other Enid and Van. A terrible storm comes up and when the tent falls, Sally finds herself supported in the arms of the Easterner. He tells her he knows her identity. When they are rescued Sally discovers that David and Nita are missing. Later in the night when BYBEE finds his safe has been robbed, suspicion falls on the missing pair, and the manager is about to call in the police when Sally begs him to wait. The troupe leader Bybee, not to call police, to wait and see if David will return. When someone suggests David is probably hurt or killed, Sally faints. When she comes to she goes alone out into the darkness to find him. As day breaks she sees him staggering toward her over a little hill.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

Before she reached him Sally almost faint with horror, for in the pale light of the dawn she saw that David's shirt about his left shoulder was soaked with blood. But his injured right arm was stretched out in urgent invitation and his voice was halting her, in spite of his terrible weakness and fatigue.

"Dear little Sally," he cried huskily, as his right arm swept her against his breast. "Why aren't you in bed darling? But I'm glad you're not! I've been able to keep plodding on in the hope of seeing you. David you think I'd run away and left you? Poor little Sally!" he crooned over her, for she was crying her frantic hands playing over his face, her eyes devouring him through her tears.

"But you're hurt, David!" she moaned. "I knew you were hurt! I told them so! I was looking for you. I knew you hadn't run away."

"And she made us believe you hadn't, too," Pap Bybee panted, having reached them on a run, dragging his wife behind him. "What happened, Dave boy? Had a mix-up with the dirty crooks, did you?"

"Winfield Bybee you are a fool!" Mrs. Bybee gasped, breathless from running. "Let the poor boy get his breath first. Here! Put your arm about him and let him lean on you. Sally, you run back to the train and get help. This boy's all done up and he's going to have that shoulder dressed before he's pestered to death with questions."

"I can walk," David panted, his breath whistling across his ashen lips. "I don't want Sally out of my sight—I would—give up—then. Nothing much—the matter. Just a—bullet—in my shoulder. Be all right—in a day or two."

"Please don't try to talk darling," Sally begged, rubbing her cheek softly against his right hand and wetting it with her tears.

"Lean on me and take it easy," Pap Bybee urged, his voice husky with unashamed emotion. "And don't talk any more till we get you into a berth, boy! But I'm glad to see you. Dave boy! I'd made up my mind I'd never trust another man if you'd thrown me down. But Sally didn't doubt you a minute. Kept me from telling the police that you'd been with the show and had disappeared with the crooks."

"Thanks," David gasped, leaning heavily on the showman. "I was scared sick—the police—had found—Sally. Knew there was—bound to be—an awful row."

He faltered then, his splendid young body crumpling suddenly to the sin-ders of the railroad track. Somehow the three of them managed to get him to the show train and into the Bybee's stateroom, where Gus, the Barker, who had graduated from medical school before the germ of wanderlust had infected him, dressed the wounded shoulder.

"The bullet went clear through the fleshy part of the arm at the shoulder," Gus told them as he washed his hands in the stateroom's basin. "No bones touched at all. Just a flesh wound. Of course he's lost a lot of blood and he'll be pretty shaky for a few days, but no real harm done. You can turn off the faucet, Sally. Save them tears for a big tragedy—like ground glass in your cold cream, or something like that. Want a real doctor to give that shoulder the once-over, Pop?" he asked, turning to Bybee, who had not left David's side.

"It was David, opening his eyes dazedly then, who answered. "No other doctor, please. I'm a fugitive from justice, remember. If I could have some coffee now I think I could tell you what happened Mr. Bybee."

A dozen eager voices outside the stateroom door offered to get the coffee from the privilege car and within a few minutes Sally was kneeling before David, holding a cup of steaming black coffee to his lips.

As many of the carnival family as could crowd into the small space of the car aisle pressed against the open door of the stateroom to hear his story. Jan, the Holland giant, who was too tall to stand upright in the car, was invited into the stateroom, where he sat between Pop Bybee and Mrs. Bybee, "Pitty Sing" in the crook of one of his arms. Noko, the Hawaiian midget, in the other. Sally still knelt beside David, holding his right hand tightly in both of hers and laying her lips upon it when his story moved her unbearably.

"I suppose Mrs. Bybee has told you that I was leaving the show train to go to the carnival grounds to see if anything had happened to Sally. I'd have gone sooner, but the storm was so violent that I knew I'd not have a chance to get there. Mrs. Bybee said she was going to the lot and would look after Sally for me, but she wanted me to stay on the train, or near it, to patrol it. She didn't tell me there was a lot of money in her stateroom, or I'd have stationed myself in there."

"You see," Sally interrupted eagerly. "I told you I hadn't said a word to him about the safe."

"Safe?" David glanced down at her, puzzled. "So this Steve crook cracked a safe to get the money, did he? I didn't know—he didn't have time to find out."

"And I told you it was a man named Steve," Sally reminded them joyously, raising David's cold hand to her lips. "They thought I was making it all up, Dave, but they believed me after a while."

"I suppose Sally has told you that we saw Nita and some men walking in the moonlight that last night we were in Stanton," David addressed Pop Bybee. "We heard her call him Steve, and say something about what she'd do to him if he double-crossed her. I should have told you then, Mr. Bybee, but I didn't have an idea Nita was planning to rob the outfit and anyway—" he blushed, his eyes twinkling fondly at Sally—"by morning I'd forgotten all about it. I couldn't think of anything but—but Sally. You see, we'd just told each other that night—that—well, sir, that we loved each other and—"

"Anybody else in the whole outfit could have told you that," Bybee chuckled. "It's all right, Dave. Carnival folks usually mind their own business and spend damn little time totting tales."

"I'm glad you're not blaming me," David said gratefully. "Well, sir, I was walking up and down the tracks, just wild to get away and see if anything had happened to Sally, when suddenly I heard a soft thud, like somebody jumping to the ground on the other side of the train. I crossed over as quick as I could, but by that time they were running down the side of the train pretty far ahead of me. It was Nita and a man. They must have been hidden on the train, waiting their chance, when the storm broke—were there when Mrs. Bybee left."

"I suppose they hadn't counted on any such luck; had probably intended to overpower her before you got back, sir, and the storm saved them the trouble."

"I'd have given them a run for the money," Mrs. Bybee retorted grimly, her skinny old hand knocking into a menacing fist.

"That's just what I did," David grinned rather whitely at her. "I yelled at them to stop, because I had an idea they'd jumped off this car, and since they'd jumped off this car, and since Nita had no business on the train, since all you people were sleeping on the lot."

"They were carrying a couple of suitcases that looked suspiciously heavy to me. It dashed over me that Mrs. Bybee, being treasurer of the outfit, must have left a lot of money in her stateroom, and that Nita and this Steve chap had been planning to rob her when Sally and I heard them talking the other night. I started after them, still yelling for them to stop, and Steve turned and fired at me. He missed me, lucky for me, and I kept right on going."

"About a hundred yards beyond the end of the train they climbed into a car that was parked on the road that runs alongside the tracks and after telling me goodbye with another bullet that missed me, too, Steve had the car started. I was about to give up and start toward Capital City to notify the police when I noticed there was a handcar on the tracks, just where this spur joins the main line."

"I threw the switch and in a minute I had the handcar on the main line and was pumping along after the railroad track for five or six miles, you know, and I could make nearly as good time in my handcar as they could in their flivver, for it's a down grade nearly all the way." He paused, his eyes closing wearily as if every muscle in his body ached with the memory of that terrible ride in the dead of night.

"Better rest awhile, Dave," Pop Bybee suggested gently, bending over the boy to wipe the cold drops of sweat from his forehead.

"No, I'll get it over with," David protested weakly. "There's not much more to tell. They couldn't see me, had no idea I was trailing them in the handcar. But I could keep them in sight because of their headlights. I guess they'd have got away, though, if a freight train hadn't come along just then and blocked the road. They were just reaching the grade crossing where the state orator cuts the railroad tracks when this freight came charging down on us."

"But you, David!" Sally shuddered, bowing her head on his hand, the fingers of which curled upward weakly to cup her face. "You were on the track. Did the train hit you? Oh!"

"Of course not!" David grinned at her. "I'm here, and I wouldn't have been if the engine had hit the handcar when I was on it. But I'm afraid the railroad company is minus one handcar this morning. The conductor of the freight engine scooped it up and tossed it aside as if it had been a baby's go-cart. But I'd already jumped and was tumbling down the bank into a nice bed of wildflowers."

"Pretty wet after the storm, so I didn't go to sleep. I'd jumped to the other side of the tracks and was hiding from Steve's car while his freight rolled on. They didn't stop to hold a post-mortem over the handcar. Probably figured a tramp had been bumping a free ride on it and had got his, and good enough for him."

"When the train had passed I was waiting by the road for Steve's car. I guess he was pretty badly surprised when I hopped upon the running board and grabbed the steering wheel and swerved the car into a ditch, nearly turning it over. I don't remember much of what happened then, what with Nita screaming and Steve swearing and popping his gun at me. But somehow I managed to get his revolver—didn't know I'd been shot at first—and dragged him out of the car."

"It must have been a pretty good fight, for Nita decided to beat it before it was finished. She started off with one of the suitcases but it was too heavy and she dropped it in the road and lit out. If Nita could dance as well as she can run," David interrupted himself to grin at Bybee. "She'd be a real loss to the outfit."

"Well, Dave, even if Steve did get away with the money, my hat's off to you, boy, and I'd reached for the hand which Sally was still cuddling jealously."

"Who's telling this?" David demanded, with just a touch of boyish better than that ever. "He didn't get away. I'm afraid he won't be good for much for a long time. Nita should have stayed to look after him."

"The money, Dave!" Mrs. Bybee screamed. "You didn't save the money, did you, Dave? Where are you, Winfield Bybee? I'm giving you fair warning! If he saved that money, I'm going to faint dead away!"

David is afraid to take credit for his deed, so the story is given to Eddie Cobb.

Approximately half the cases involve violations of the federal prohibition laws. Other cases include violation of the postal narcotic laws.

THE ANSWERS

1. One Spade. This is a hand in which one of a suit should be bid, although it does not contain two quick tricks in the sense of having an Ace-King, two Aces, one Ace and one King-Queen or two King-Queens; but the Spade Ace is one quick trick and the hand contains much more than the equivalent of another The Queen of Spades accompanying the Ace has two-thirds of a chance of being worth a trick; that is, it will take a trick with spades trump if the King of Spades be in partner's hand or on the right. Each of the two Kings has the same chance of taking a trick that the Queen (accompanied by the Ace) possesses, so the two Kings and the Queen together are much more than the equivalent of a quick trick.

Printed Felts Dot Their Way To Chic In New Hats

BY HENRI BENDEL
New York—It is one of the old saying that there is nothing new under the sun, he should watch hats.

New shapes, new trimmings and new colors abound this season. Gold lace over color trims some hats with its rich, distinctive touch. And now printed felts dot their way to chic in square or round polka dots. The polka dotted hat, in fact, is the hat of the hour.

These new polka dotted hats may have their figures done by hand. One dead white baku hat has dabs of cheville in navy blue dusting it in all over pattern. Another charming version of the chic there can be in dots comes in the form of a white little turban of irregular feathers with varied dots of black springing its softness. Polka dotted bands link hats of many different colors to the ensembles they accompany.

A TAILORED MODEL
The newest polka dotted hat is the imported tweed felt, soft as velvet and light as a feather. These are tailored hats for the most part. But their softness makes them semi-dressy and when light colored they add the proper touch to a plain costume.

Two of my polka dotted hats, imported from Rebus, showed the difference cut makes to a hat. One, a vagabond type, with its brim rippling, comes in grey and blue and is correct for sports wear. It has a smart, frivolous bow of grosgrain ribbon in blue. Worn with a grey tweed outfit, it is ideal for a water trip or anywhere else that the sun's glare might bother the eyes.

The second polka dotted felt is the acme of chic and charm in lavender with purple dots and ribbon. This hat is tailored to fit the head perfectly, with a much lower crown than the first hats of this season predicted.

MORE FORMAL

It has a cut-out back and a small graduated brim that stops next to nothing in the front. This helps a woman in this more than a floppy hat that would be a tremendous mistake on anyone who had to rush.

BLENDS WITH COLORS

The big hat this season relies on its shape, straw and coloring to give it its style. Then it adds a distinctive touch or two in the line of trim and. Mildly hat a chapeau she will see nowhere else.

One of the newest of straws is punta straw in natural shade. It has the look of more formality that the larger one. It is excellent for toppling a lavender ensemble that might use the same polka dots for its blouse trimmings. Or some of the purple pearl beads might pick out the color tone of it.

The big hat persists in remaining more popular than it has been for two decades. America is getting back to an idea of some leisure hours in which one should dress and look the part. Nothing is much easier than dead white on one's complexion. And it blends much more easily into a color harmony for the whole outfit.

The big hat I show today is of punta straw, with an irregular brim that is, literally, a different size at every point of its brim. This gives a graceful roll that no big hat should be without. The only trimming is a fancy bow with four ends instead of two, fashioned of gold braid in tuscany straw, made over a clear, bright green.

Household Hints

GELATINE DESIGN
If you want mint, carrot or beet flowers or any other fancy design in gelatine, pour one layer of gelatine in first, arrange pattern, let cool, and add another layer of gelatine.

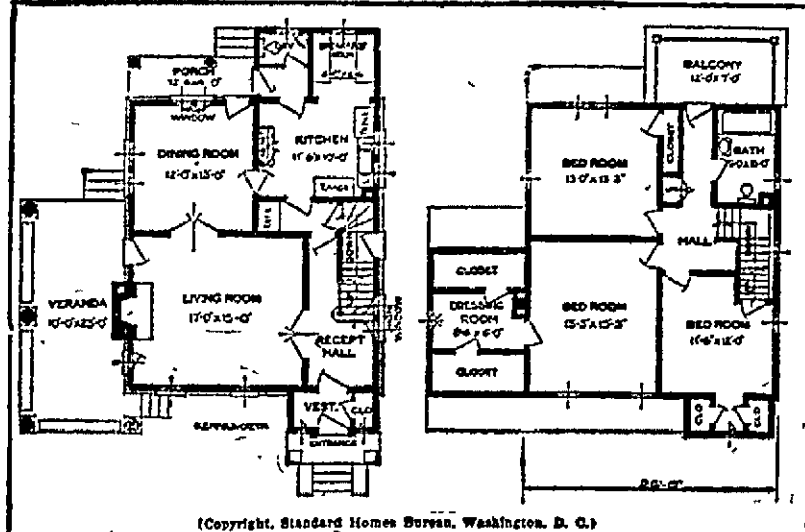

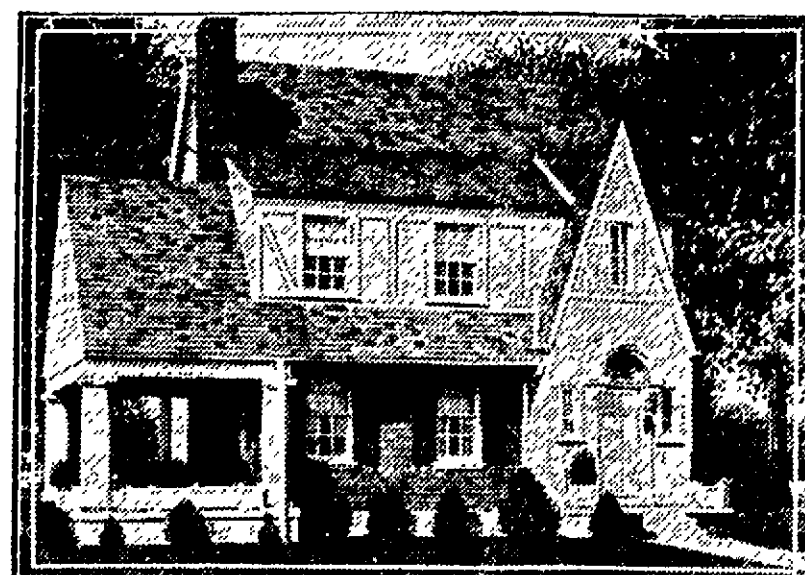

MEASURING FATS
An easy way to measure a half cup of hard or butter, is to fill a cup half full of water, and put in enough fat to bring the water to the top.

IODINE STAINS
To remove iodine stains, moisten with ammonia or alcohol before washing. Rinse with warm water before putting into suds.

COLORFUL PUDDING
For a change, use nuts and some of these old-fashioned cinnamon drops in rice pudding. It will come out streaked with pink, which will delight the children.

MARKING CENTERS
When cutting out garments, if you will waste down the center of the front back with different colored thread before you unfold it, you will save time and trouble.

PLENTY OF PRIVACY HERE

THE lulling, mottled roofs of this English-type home make it seem to grow from the ground on a hillside or close to tall trees.

A lawn and semi-formal garden would give the proper setting to "The Kennelworth." The over-hanging eaves, roofs in variegated tones, brick walls and half-timbered stucco facings on the main exposure give it a charming play of light, shade and color.

Inside, the English idea of privacy prevails. It is a home where Father, Mother and two children could live, each to himself in quite his own individual manner. For the upstairs has three large bedrooms, each with a wealth of closet space. One bedroom, in fact, is almost a double one, with a dressing room off it boasting two large closets.

Downstairs there is almost a porch apiece. A long veranda flanks the living room, with French windows giving on it from either side of the brick fireplace. There's a sizeable porch off the dining room, which is quite private because the window opening onto it is high. Upstairs there is quite a balcony looking out into the trees.

It is a delightful home to live in. Its workshop kitchen would delight an woman, and the breakfast nook off it, and family. A feature of the main floor layout is the 23 foot vista when the double doors between the dining room and the living room are flung open.

The cost of "The Kennelworth" is from $7500 to $8500.

HOME TRAINING MAKES WOMEN LAW ENFORCERS

It America is to have real prohibition, it is up to women to enforce the laws, in the opinion of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, general chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement.

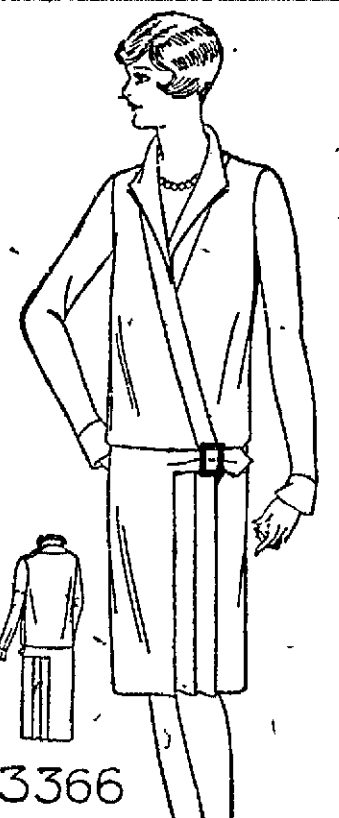

"Woman's home training steals her to the arduous tasks entailed in enforcing any laws," Mrs. Peabody keeps the children under home law. Any man left alone with six lively children for a week might readily modify or repeal the Ten Commandments, seize his personal liberty in both hands and state with deep conviction that 'woman's place is in the home.'

"Man the law-giver; woman the law-enforcer! That has been the accepted home-rule in American life. Why not put it into effect in a democracy where men are making a dismal failure?"

The best law enforcement official in Washington today is a woman, Mabel Willebrand, Assistant Attorney General.

"From now until election day, patriotic women are needed to hold candidates to their plain duty of enforcing the law."

BEING A JUDGE IS LIKE BEING A MOTHER IN A HOME

Memphis, Tenn. — "Could anyone around here tell me where to locate Judge Kelly?" a visiting lawyer asked his bellhop.

"The little ebony face lit up. 'Judge Camille Kelley, Boss?' the little fellow queried. 'Why, Ah knows her, myself, Suh. She's de lady dat gits us cullud folk just'..." he said proudly.

He was only one of hundreds of Kelley fans in Memphis. For Judge Kelley, the first woman judge south of the Mason-Dixon line when she was appointed eight years ago, has made her Juvenile Court famous. What is more, she has made most of the delinquents who appeared before her, friendly. Black, white, young, old, whatever the case from a runaway black boy who stole to live, to a white beggar who beat his little daughter because she wouldn't steal, each culprit has a chance to explain his case.

SHE WAS A NURSE
"Being a judge is just like being a mother," this dynamic woman with kindly dark eyes and a warm smile, said.

Judge Kelley should know. Born in Memphis, the daughter of the late Dr. J. P. McGee, prominent surgeon, she studied nursing and was made head of a hospital before she met T. F. Kelley, a well-known lawyer. When she changed her name, she changed her profession too. While her two boys were growing up, she studied law with her husband.

Now, with both sons grown, one a lawyer and the other a reporter, Judge Kelley has transferred her attention to delinquents.

AN UNUSUAL COURT
Visiting her court is a sensation in an ordinary life. It is justice in a ballroom, literally. For Juvenile Court is held in an old mansion. Up a winding path under tall elms, through stately porticos, into a spacious hall-room with lovely parquetry floor, crystal chandeliers, old pier glasses and lilacs and azaleas in big pitchers in the deeply recessed windows.

"Now, Mother, tell your story," she said, soothingly. "How much does he give you a week? Now your case, Father. How much do you make?"

Quietly, sympathetically, she gets both sides of the story, takes the parents and children bring to her. They

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby - Babies Have Nerves

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WHILE Scouty sat the faucet tight, the others ran, with all their might and hopped aboard their floating boat. "Ah, everything's just fine," said Corp, as he looked around. "We've floated up off the ground. Please hurry up there, Scouty. I'll pull in the anchor line." But, some real trouble was in store. The small boat drifted from the shore, and Scouty yelled, "Hey, wait for me, or I will have to wade. The river bottom may be muck. I fear that my feet might get stuck. Now, one of you please paddle and some progress will be made."

They tried to paddle back to shore. Then Scouty's little hands got sore. Said he, "It simply can't be done. I cannot budge this craft. It seems the current's rather strong and straight ahead it moves along. Why don't you try and jump out here?" The other Timies laughed.

"Why, it's too far for him to jump," said Corp, "he would land kerplump right in the middle of the stream. I think he'd better swim." Then Scouty jumped out of his clothes; threw them aboard and yelled, "Here goes!" The way he swam out to the boat showed them he was in trim.

"Hurrah," cried Corp, "Now we'll cruise around. I'll bet this boat is moving at quite a wondrous speed." They sped along for miles and then the houseboat slowed right down again. "The current's slowing down," cried one. Some help we're going to need."

Just then they heard a small man cry, "I'll help you, lads. At least I'll try." "Oh, look!" cried Scouty, "up on shore's a donkey and a man. This surely gives us all new hope. Perhaps he has a real strong rope to tow us, with his donkey. We will let him, if he can."

SOVIET RUSSIA FORBIDS USE OF WORD, "LOVE"

BY ALLEN SUMNER

Soviet Russia, it is said, forbids the use of the words "love" and "tenderness," because it believes such emotions are hostile strength and power. Romantic love must go, says the Soviet. Marriage must be regarded as merely an economic provision for the care of children.

It is difficult to imagine a nation growing very strong on that basis. For strength is a product of happiness, and where is happiness without love?

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Dearest Mom: You just said as well not try to understand us—the modern generation, I mean, because you can't do it. All your natural sympathy is for those who are unlike us. Take Florence and Betty for instance. You're entirely on Betty's side. You think she's wonderful because she is willing to make the same sacrifice for a while that everybody expects Florence to make as a matter of course.

If you really had any use for flappers you would accept us at our own valuation of ourselves. We think we're crusaders, and I ask you, Mom, while there is a free soul to ring the bells to make the same sacrifice for a while that everybody expects Florence to make as a matter of course.

Yes, I know that girdles are worn and hair is growing again, but never while there is a free soul to ring the bells to make the same sacrifice for a while that everybody expects Florence to make as a matter of course.

I know a lot of girls who are letting their hair grow but not one of them is willing to go back to hair so long that they can sit on it. When nearly everyone is let to ring the bells to make the same sacrifice for a while that everybody expects Florence to make as a matter of course.

The way a woman dresses always will be mostly a matter of prevailing style, but, thank goodness, no one who has broken away from the rule-of-thumb slavery ever will be silly "conventions" grow again.

But even our new freedom entails obligations. We admit that. One of the first, and really the most important, is to know life. We must learn how to live. So long as we are on earth we are living. Why not know what life is all about?

Naturally Florence doesn't know just how she can use the experiences and education she has gained here in the city but we both think they will prove of value to her at home some time or other. You really can't know too much.

Deepest love, MARYE.

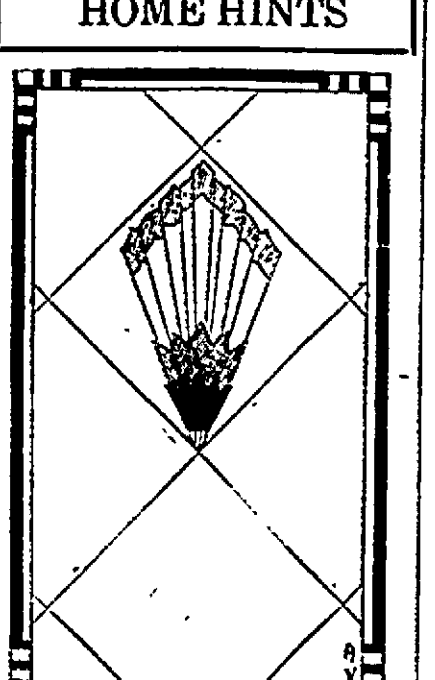

TOMORROW: Marye's jealousy is aroused when Florence steps out with Norman. (Copyright, 1928, NEA Service, Inc.)

2 Kotex Improvements

with a million new women users

Regular price was .65c, NOW 45c—at all stores

WHEN the Improved Kotex was perfected it was sold without announcement of the fact that any changes had been made.

The improvements in Kotex are exclusive.

The first is an improved shape—one that means no awkward bulkiness to mar smooth, fashionable lines. The other, a fleecy softness never known before. The two mean almost unbelievable comfort—a total peace-of-mind found with no other pad.

But the women of America were quick to find out the improvements. And within a few months, a million new women had adopted the Improved Kotex. Kotex has always been the largest selling sanitary pad in the world.

This doubled volume brought such efficiencies in manufacture that we found the regular price could be greatly reduced at the same time that we announced the Improved Kotex.

Now get Improved Kotex at new low prices. Today obtain the Improved Kotex. You can buy it anywhere. All drug, department and dry goods stores have it now—at the new low prices.

COOLIDGE'S CLOSEST IS JUST AS QUIET AS PRESIDENT, HIMSELF

Boston Man "Understands" Nation's Chief and Is Often a Guest at White House

Washington—There is one person with no official designation for whom provisions will have to be made at the summer White House in Wisconsin. He is Frank W. Stearns, of Boston. There has been no word from the president that Stearns will accompany the vacation party, yet it is understood by everyone here that some time or other this summer Stearns will present himself at the summer White House. Coolidge and Stearns are old friends.

It might be added that Stearns is with the Coolidge family most of the time—he is the star boarder at the White House.

Stearns, besides being the president's closest friend, is his political father. He is credited with having "discovered" Coolidge. In fact, it was Stearns who proposed Coolidge for governor of Massachusetts with the thought that he was presidential timber and sure to go to the White House some day.

"Personally I think of Mr. Coolidge as a father toward his son; politically, I look to Mr. Coolidge as a son toward his father," was the way Stearns put it one time in describing his relationship to the president.

Stearns and Coolidge is Stearns' hobby, and Stearns is 12 years older than the president, so it is all right. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns have been about the White House almost every month since Coolidge became president. They are like parents to the Coolidges.

Every few days there is an item in the society columns of the Washington newspapers: "Mr. and Mrs. M. Frank W. Stearns will be entertained tonight at the theatre by President and Mrs. Coolidge." Or "Mr. Stearns will leave the White House tonight for Boston to be gone a few days on business."

Stearns is a friendly man, easily approached and liked by all who have contact with him. He can be sociable without indulging in familiarity; he is chatty, but not glib. There is no danger of him ever spilling the political beans or giving away any state secrets he might know.

Coolidge, like most men, likes to have someone near him in whom he has implicit confidence—someone he can trust to the limit. This especially is true when the president has a troublesome problem with which to deal. He has been known to send for Stearns and then sit in silence with him for hours at a time. Perhaps it is because Stearns understands the president's natural silence that they get along so well—and Stearns understands him as no other man. He can be as silent as the president.

One reason he retains his close relationship with the president is because he never attempts to suggest how to run the government and never permits himself to recommend anyone for an appointment. He does not abuse his friendship. If he hears a good story he will venture to tell it to the president, who enjoys a good yarn, but he does not thrust upon his host and friend any ideas relating to the government's business unless his opinion is sought.

The story is told in Washington that Coolidge sent for Stearns, who was roaming somewhere about the White House. Stearns, who thought that some important matter demanded his presence, hastened to join the president.

"Let's smoke," was Coolidge's greeting as he handed Stearns a cigar.

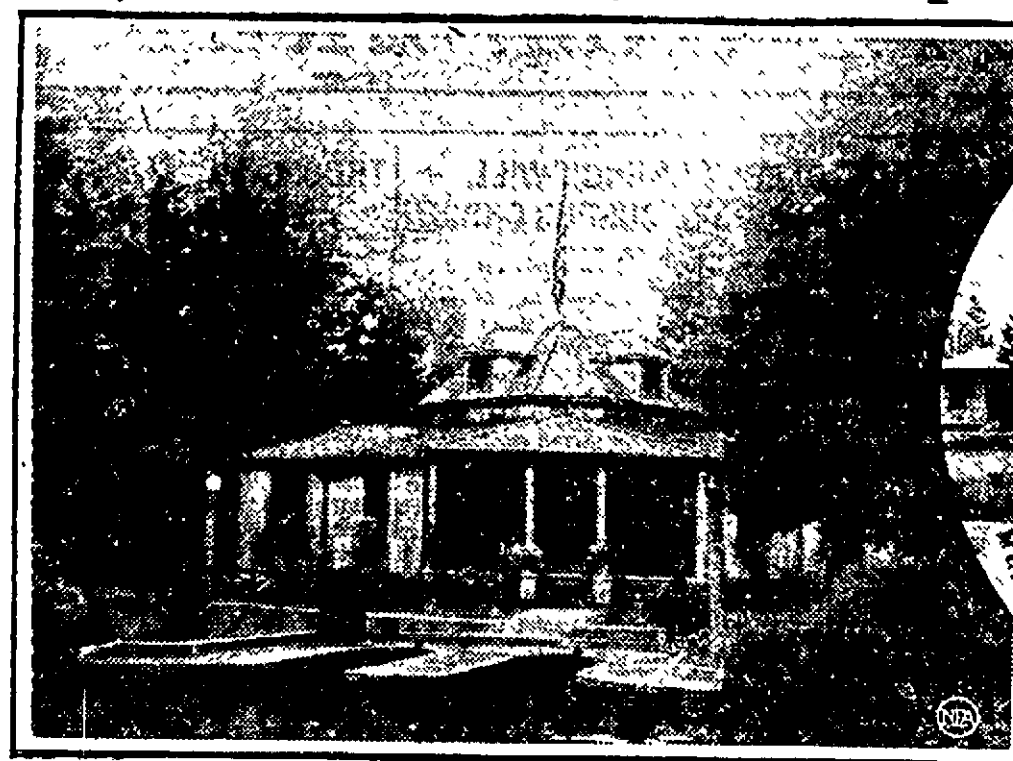

And when the president proposed a smoke he meant that and nothing more. Stearns smoked. Coolidge smoked. They puffed away at the weed, silent as two owls sitting on a limb. The president does much of his serious thinking while enjoying a cigar. And when he is in a thoughtful mood he likes to have his understanding friend about. These two men understand each other without a lot of talk.

But though they are intimate friends, Stearns never has been known to call the president "Cal." And Coolidge has addressed Stearns as "Frank."

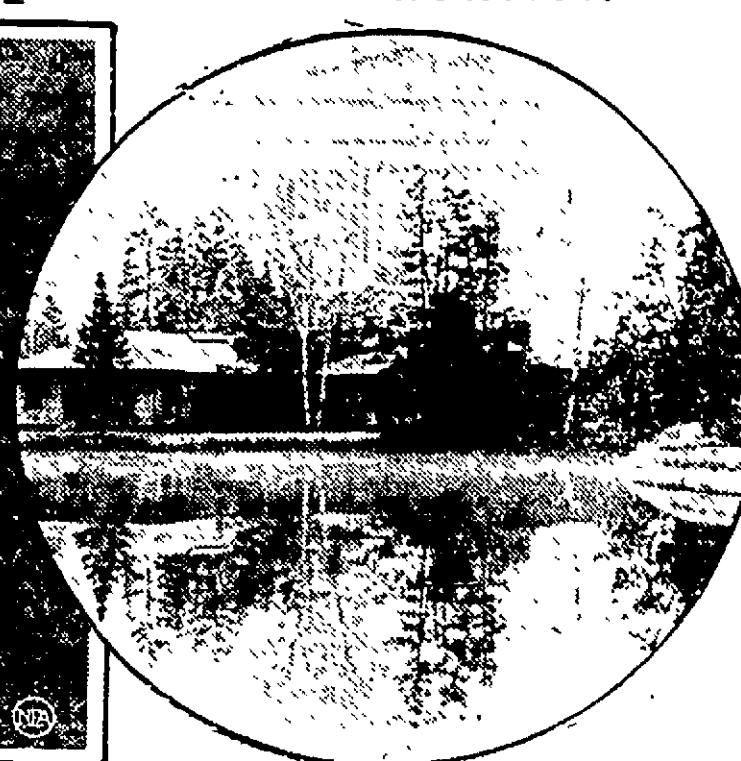

"It just isn't natural for me to address any man by his first name," Stearns explains, "and as for Mr. Coolidge I guess he never calls me Frank because I am 15 years his senior."

But Mr. Stearns is no cold person. He is friendly without familiarity. He

Where Coolidge Will Spend His Vacation

Cedar Island Lodge, 39 miles from Superior, Wisconsin, has been selected by President Coolidge as his summer playground. And it has nearly everything a summer playground should have. Here's the bungalow fronting on the Duluth river, in which the president will live.

Nearly, also fronting on the river is a separate dining hall. Here is a striking picture of it. The lodge was built by the late Henry Clay Pierce, oil magnate.

MINISTERS DISCUSS 1929 TRAINING SCHOOL

Plans for summer union services and for next years church training school will be discussed by the Rev. C. J. Lotz, Fond du Lac, and members of the Fox River Valley Ministerial association at a luncheon and meeting at 12:15 Thursday noon at the Y. M. C. A. Routine business also will be discussed.

STAGE And SCREEN

"OLD IRONSIDES" TRULY GREAT MOTION PICTURE That much overworked adjective "gigantic" may very properly be employed to describe "Old Ironsides," the new Paramount spectacle produced by James Cruze and adapted from Laurence Stallings' original story by Harry Carr and Walter Woods, which is showing at Fischer's Appleton Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

It is doubtful if even Mr. Cruze himself realized what a tremendous impression the picture would make upon the minds of the public. It is one of the first real American epics of the silent drama. Other productions have made us see parts of United States history but this, with its hard bitter Yankee tars and dauntless fighting men, makes one feel the tremendous bravery and courage of our forefathers.

Although "Old Ironsides" is for the most part, a picture of gripping the love interest is unusually strong. It is contained in a romantic and wholesome story between Esther Ralston and Charles Farrell which stands out like a diamond mounted in a setting of hand-hammered gold.

Aside from the colorful love episodes, there are any number of other scenes done with a sincerity which is seldom seen. One of the most remarkable is the parting of the players at the end when Esther Ralston, Wallace Beery, Charles Farrell and George Adey, the four comrades of George Hancock, leave him to continue their journey to the China Seas aboard the brig, "Esther."

Much praise is due all those who participated in the production but the major portion goes to James Cruze, that mighty director who also gave us "The Covered Wagon." Due to his efforts the photoplay has not one lagging moment.

"WALKING BACK" Picture fans who attend the Elite Theatre, where the De Mille studio production, "Walking Back," is showing today and tomorrow will have an opportunity of seeing a typical "youngster set" party.

A real negro jazz orchestra, furnished music for the dancing, during the filming of this scene and inspired is a friend who does not abuse friendship. So there is no wonder that Coolidge likes to have him about.

CAL'S HOST

Clay Arthur Pierce, who administers the estate of his father, Henry Clay Pierce, tendered to President Coolidge the use of Cedar Island Lodge as a summer white house. Pierce is a New Yorker.

many of the youthful dancers to give impromptu exhibitions of original dance steps. A colored "blues" entertainer staged a dancing and singing act, and introduced a novelty by leading the orchestra through the unusual method of "swaying time" during the dance numbers. The story is one that deals effectively with modern youth and is admirably presented.

An unusual array of lovely dancing acrobats add another interesting note to the party sequences of "Walking Back," which was directed by Rupert Julian.

Sue Carol is ideally cast in the leading feminine role, with Richard Walking opposite her. Others who have prominent roles are Robert Edeson, Ivan Lebedeff, Arthur Rankin, Jane Keckley, Florence Turner, Billy Sullivan and George Stone.

TWO DRUNKS PAY FINES IN MUNICIPAL COURT HERE

One Appleton man was fined $25 and costs for drunkenness and another was fined $10 and costs for the same offense when they pleaded guilty before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Tuesday morning. Neither of the men had paid their fines up to noon and both were being held in county jail. Ed Heinzel, 715 W. Oshkosh-ave, was fined $25 by Judge Berg because he is a repeater, the Judge said. Frank Iovinsky, 1330 S. Mason-st, was fined $10 and costs. Both men were arrested Monday afternoon by Officer Fred Arndt.

College Boys Split On Girls Paying Date Bills

Say, mister, can I have this dance? Say, mister, can I have a date tonight? Say, mister, will you let me take you out to dinner? Gone is the day of man, the aggressor, the pursuer. Gone is the day of woman, the coy pursued. Coming is the evil hour when the male will shrug his brawny shoulders and utter deprecatingly, proudly, "Old dear, I'm so rushed by the girls I don't know what to do." Coming is the evil hour when mother will say proudly over the back fence, "The girls ring all day for Johnny."

Although the new movement casts but a faint shadow at Lawrence college, and the rumble of its shot and war drums is like distant thunder, the coeds, according to their natures, already turn pale or become exultant at the thought of battle, while the men occupy themselves with their innocent pursuits, remaining as clean peasants on August 4, 1914, ignorant as a Russian self the day before Lenin got his way.

In some colleges when a man takes his girl out to dine and dance his girl pays her own way, and Dutch treat dates hidden expense accounts of at least a few dollars are common. At Lawrence, while some of the radicals think the plan a very good one, convention is heaving a last gasp.

"What?" said one horrified collegian, "have the girl I take out pay her own way? Never. Anyway not unless we were engaged."

Another said, "I think it is a very good idea. A girl's expenses are less than a fellows. The greater part of a man's social expenses are costs of dates. If both split on the expenses it would mean that less perfectly acceptable, but broke men would sit around the fraternity houses while perfectly acceptable girls with the price of a show or a dance languish in the dormitories." In partial answer to this argument, a young woman brought up the fact that silk stockings, marcel waves, perfumes, et cetera count up in the long run to as much, if not more, than the amount an escort spends. Whereupon, a squabble ensued with men indignantly pointing to the cost of the shave which is a masculine prerequisite to every date.

Some of the men thought it an excellent idea but were worried by the obstacles which stood in the way. When you called up should you say, "Hello, Mary? What're you doing tonight. Yeh. All right about seven. Say, don't forget your pocketbook?" Or should you wait until May called you? But then how could you be assured of getting the right Mary. No, no, as yet the secret of my hands-and-wait lot of the woman does not look good to many of the Lawrence men.

One disillusioned youngster who had drunk the deeps and found them bitter said he had rushed a girl last year who did not come back this year.

Hamburg—(AP)—Germans are taking lead out of their Dutch neighbors' back in the matter of land reclamation, though on a smaller scale than the Zuyder Zee drainage scheme, which involves an area of about 550,000 acres.

Last year Germans wrested nearly 20,000 acres of land from the sea along the coast of Schleswig-Holstein, and the work is still going on. A system of dams, walls and ditches at first retains the sediment brought in by the tide. As soon as possible a marsh plant, which grows on such sediment, is set out. It helps retain the wash, and before long what had been sea is tillable land. The cost is about $60 per acre.

Puts An End To Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Voigt's Drug Store or Schlitz Bros. Drug Stores or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunion are reduced to normal.

TROOPS THWART BANDITS
AS CHINESE VISIT DEAD

Foochow, China—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Lin Chung, commanding Nationalist forces in and about Foochow, has decided that local residents worshipping at the tombs of their ancestors are not to be molested by bandits ruthlessly in the district.

One of the strict customs of the Chinese is to go periodically to the graves of their ancestors, repair the tombs and place idol-paper and food offerings about so that the spirits of their departed ones may be provided for in the spirit world.

The tombs are outside the city walls and when representatives of wealthy families go to the family tombs they are in danger of being seized by bandits, carried off and held for ransom.

General Lin has placed bodies of troops to patrol the burial grounds so worshippers may go and come unmolested.

April 6 is the feast of the Ch'ing Ming, a Chinese variation of Memorial day. Large pilgrimages are made to the ancestral tombs and idol-paper and food offerings are provided for the dead. This year considerable fear was felt within the city that bandits would prevent the rites, but General Lin put his troops on the job, held off the bandits and respects to the dead were paid without molestation.

HORNSBY'S BIG STICK BEATS CINCY REDS IN NINTH FRAME

Former Giant Assists Old Teammates To Gain On National Loop Leaders

Ty Cobb Comes Out of Batting Slump as Athletics Down Weak White Sox

The New York Giants owe a vote of thanks to their former teammate, Rogers Hornsby, who is hitting the ball at a .418 clip for the Boston Braves.

The "Rajah," left by the Giants for the "good" of the club, personally accounted for the runs that pulled the Braves to a 5 to 3 verdict over the Cincinnati Reds at the hub Monday in one of the two major league games that rain did not prevent. The Reds' defeat allowed the idle Giants to creep a bit closer to Hendricks' crew, out in front in the National League race and determined to stay there.

With the score tied and George Sisler on base in the ninth, Hornsby drove the ball into the center field bleachers—a terrific drive that decided the issue then and there. A few minutes before, Dressen's homer had tied the score. Eppa Rixey, elongated Cincinnati hurler, did his best to keep his team in the running with the first four-base blow of the game in the seventh. Horace Ford grabbed two assists at shortstop for the Reds, running his consecutive chances accepted without an error to 101.

Six runs in the first three innings were enough to carry the Philadelphia Athletics to victory over the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 3, at Chicago. Ty Cobb came out of a bad batting slump and drove in three runs with a single and a triple in the first and second innings. Eddie Walsh, pitcher, pitched the game for the Athletics until the ninth when he walked two men and then allowed three hits that were good for two runs. Kamm's home run in the second accounted for the third Sox tally.

All the other big time teams had an off day because of rain.

12-INNING SOFTBALL BATTLE AT KIMBERLY

Kimberly—In one of the best softball games seen on the Kimberly diamond the Southsiders defeated the Uptown Gang 5 to 4 in 12 innings Sunday morning. The Uptown Gang led at the ninth inning 4 to 1 when the Southsiders rallied to tie the score. The game then went three more innings before the Southsiders scored their winning run.

The Uptown players scored a run in the first, second, fifth and sixth innings with the winners scoring 1 in the first 3 in the ninth, and the winning run in the twelfth.

Charley Behling pitched with Spots Huntington catching, for the winners while Duane Carvian and Ray Schwank formed the battery for the losers. Behling allowed six hits and Carvian seven. Both teams played good fielding games, except for the ninth inning when the losers had three errors, both teams making double plays.

RAIN HALTS BATTLES IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Chicago—(P)—The elements, rain and cold weather allowed but eight innings of baseball in the American Association race Monday and they didn't decide anything.

With all other games called off because of inclement weather, Louisville and Minneapolis clashed for eight innings, but rain finally prevailed and the game was called with the score knotted at one-all.

At a result, St. Paul still led the race Tuesday night, a game a half ahead of Kansas City, runner up, and but two and a half games ahead of Minneapolis, sixth place occupant.

CLEVELAND BOY LEADS BADGER DIAMOND TEAM

Madison—(P)—Arthur "Dynamite" Mansfield, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected captain of the University of Wisconsin baseball team for 1928 Saturday evening. He starred at first base during the season just closed. Mansfield also was the team's leading hitter.

Choice Three-Year-Olds In Historic Epsom Derby

Epsom, England—(P)—The sporting world Tuesday turned its attention to Epsom Downs where the season's choice three-year-olds fight it out in the historic derby Wednesday.

Twenty-three slim colts will struggle for supremacy over the irregular course of a mile and a half while prince and commoner forget the difference in rank for the day at least.

The favorite, so far as expert opinion goes, is Fairway, owned by Lord Derby after whose ancestor the animal class is named. Lord Derby's bay beauty has been hailed by the experts as a racing machine possessing great qualities of limb and heart.

Astride the favorite will be Tommy Weston, who rode Fairway to victory in the Newmarket stakes, traditionally regarded as the gate to success in the great Epsom race.

But Fairway will not have the course to himself by any manner of means. Bats of hopeful money are backing Sunny Trace, Lord Dewar's brown colt, and Flamingo, stout-hearted entry owned by Sir Laurence Phillips. Sunny Trace is a lively mover but perhaps a greater factor in his popularity lies in the fact that he will be ridden by Gordon Richards, champion jockey of last season, and a frequent winner this year. The hopes that many hold of success for Flamingo rest more firmly on this bay colt's now well-proven merits.

WHITE COLLAR BOSS HURT OLYMPIC TEAM

Politics, Incompetence Injured U. S. Chances in 1920-1924

BY HENRY FARRELL

Because of politics and incompetence the teams selected to represent the United States in 1920 and 1924 at the Olympic games were not representative of the real strength of the nation and the athletes who did survive the mistakes of political and inefficient selectors were not able to do their best in Antwerp or in Paris.

Yes, it is true that the United States did win the feature championship in 1920 and 1924 and therein lies the difficulty. It apparently became the idea of the brass hats that the boys always could be counted upon to knock off their opponents, that the Olympic trip was a junket for seldom used silk hats and undertaker suits and that victory is a fore-ordained heritage of young America.

Caught in the middle when the occasion demanded explanations and a goat were the coaches. It is true that the head coaches were to blame for a number of things that happened in Antwerp and in Paris and were responsible also for a lot of things that didn't happen, but at the bottom of all the conical blundering were a number of high-powered white collars who should have been reading about the games in the home-town papers instead of trying to run them in Europe.

It is the purpose of this series of articles not to drag any skeletons out of the cupboard and rattle them all over the street but to make an attempt at an intelligent discussion of what may be expected of the young American shield-bearers in Amsterdam.

We know from the record books approximately what Charley Borah, Charley Paddock, George Simpson and the sprinters should do; what Bob King and Earl Osborne should do in the jumps; what Sabin Carr and Lee Barnes should do in the vault; what Krenz, Houser and the others are capable of in the weight events and what Hahn, Conger, Barbutti and others can do in the running events.

We know that from the figures on their performances in this country. But we DON'T KNOW what they will do in Amsterdam.

We know what Paddock, Murehison, Hubbard, McGarr, Spearow, Ray and others should have done in 1920 and 1924 and they didn't do it. The fault in all cases was not their own and when they were immediately responsible the coaches shared the culpability for not having prevented it.

What the young men will do in Amsterdam this summer depends largely upon the way they are handled and the method used in selecting the team and the arrangements made for the maintenance of the athletes in Amsterdam.

With one exception (which will be referred to later) the preliminary steps taken toward the organization of the team and the selection of transportation and maintenance for it are promising of vast improvement.

They are good reasons to believe that the management of the team this year is in excellent hands.

General Douglas McArthur, president of the Olympic committee, certainly has been a capable man. He has to know quite a lot about organization and troop movement and manipulation in the army and as a disciplinarian he certainly ranks higher than any of his predecessors.

Laws and Robertson, a most capable man, has been promised complete control of the field affairs of the athletes. He will run the team properly and efficiently—IF HE IS PERMITTED TO DO SO.

That is the big rub.

START ORGANIZATION OF SOFTBALL SQUAD

LLOYD HAHN REPORTS IN GREAT CONDITION

Madison—(P)—Lloyd Hahn, American's best prospect in the Olympic 800 and 1000 meters races, has reported to his coach, Jack Fryder, in excellent physical condition.

YANK WINNER

One of the prize pitching rookies of the season is Al Shealey, plucked by the New York Yankees last season from the St. Paul American Association club. Shealey has been a consistent winner with the New Yorkers and has taken a regular turn on the mound with the veteran hurlers. He has a sure assortment of stuff, and with that heavy hitting New York club behind him probably won't lose many games this season.

CAM-SCHULZ NINE LOSES BALL GAME

Wild Rose Outhits Locals To Take 7-5 Hard-fought Battle

Steady clouting in the first three innings won the Wild Rose baseball team a hard-fought battle with the Cameron-Schulz nine of Appleton Sunday at Wild Rose, the home team taking the long end of a 7-5 score by piling up six runs in the first three frames. The Cam-Schulz men opened the first inning with a run, but the home crew garnered two and added three more in the second and third while the locals were held scoreless.

The Appleton nine came back for three in the fourth and one in the fifth to make the score 6-5 for Wild Rose. Here Johnson relieved Martenson and held the invaders scoreless the rest of the way while Wild Rose added one in the seventh. Appleton had men on bases each inning but couldn't come through with the punch in the pinches.

Don Kranzuch was hit hard but he tightened in the pinches and two double plays helped him out of bad holes. Wild Rose got 15 hits off his throw, five going for extra base blows, and he fanned three. Martenson allowed five hits and fanned five men in five frames and Johnson, who relieved him, allowed two hits and fanned six in four frames. John Mayeski did the heavy batting for the losers with two doubles and a single added both players for many years ago catches in the outfield. Radloff got three hits in five bats for the winners.

HELEN'S WIN REVIVES ARGUMENT ABOUT SUZY

Paris—(P)—The victory of Helen Wills in the French International Hardcourt Tennis championships and the ease with which she dominated all competitors in capturing the title without the loss of a single set Tuesday revived the controversy as to the relative skill of the California girl and Suzanne Lenglen.

Neutral observers who have watched both players for many years asserted that never has Suzanne dominated a tournament with greater superiority than Helen did at the one just ended at Auteuil.

CHINESE DAVIS TROPHY PLAYER LOSES IN MEET

River Forest, Ill.—(P)—Paul Konz, China's sad-faced Davis cup player, had ample reason to be sad Tuesday. After failing to win a set in the singles against one of the United States Davis cup players, Konz sought solace in the annual Illinois State Tennis tournament. But misfortune followed him, and he lost in the opening round Monday to Roland Nord, Northwestern university youth, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2.

Nord's triumph was the only upset of the opening round which saw the favorites come through handily. Six players stood out Tuesday as favorites. They were Gordon Lund, Konz's Davis cup mate; Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines, Missouri; Valley champion; Henry and Roy Coffredon of Milwaukee; Brooke Edmonds of Calcutta, India; and Nord. All won their opening rounds easily except Coggeshall who drew a bye.

WEEK'S GAMES
Monday—Valley Iron 4, Schlafers 3
Tuesday—Bankers vs Valley Iron
Wednesday—Brandt vs Co. D.
Thursday—Legion vs Riverside
Friday—Interlake vs Schlafers.

Strengthening its lineup greatly by the addition of two star players, the cellar Schlafers Hardware Co. softball team surprised the strong Valley Iron Works-Superior Knit-Appleton Woolen Mills team in a American Softball League game Monday at Jones park and the Ironmen just managed to squeeze out a 4-3 victory, by a two-run rally in the final frame with the score 3-2 against them. The Ironmen are among the leading teams of the circuit. The Schlafers' new players were LaRosa, former Post-Crescent college athlete, and the pair played the team's biggest gap, third base and shortstop, in great style.

Beside Zussman was the bat star of the fray getting two hits in four bats and scoring two of the three losses runs on his first appearance this year. The game was a hurlers' duel with Tormow of the winners given ragged support but being extra effective in the pinches and Heling of the losers being hit hard but being saved by good fielding by his mates. Wiese, who scored the third Schlafers run, hit safely twice in three bats.

The Hardware crew drew first blood in the second when Zussman singled stole second and came all the way home on Zwickler's out throw. In the third the Ironmen knotted the count when Rector singled and was worked around. The Ironmen scored again in the sixth on two hits only to give the Schlafers a lead of three runs in the seventh when Lane'sky threw the ball wild to first with two on the sacks. In the eighth Schlafers took three hits to score what looked like the winning run. But in the last of the ninth Knight first of the Ironmen to face Heling hit a slow roller back at the pitcher and he missed it up. This got under his skin and he issued a free transportation to Jobs. Then Bender singled over second scoring both men for the tying and winning runs.

Wisconsin Oarsmen Meet Minnesota Boat Clubmen

Madison—The traditional rivalry that has existed between Minnesota and Wisconsin for many years will assert itself from a new angle when, on Saturday, June 16th, the Badger crews race an eight oar shell from the Minnesota Boat club.

This event has been under consideration for several weeks, but it was not until today that Director George Little completed negotiations. The Wisconsin athletic department has been particularly anxious to entertain the Minnesota Boat club, hoping thereby to foster greater interest in rowing at the University of Minnesota.

All of the men in the M. B. C. shell are students at the University of Minnesota, though their boat will be flying the colors of the Minnesota Boat club. There is a slight possibility of two crews making the trip from Minneapolis for the race that will be staged in conjunction with the Wisconsin alumni day celebration.

Coach "Dad" Vail is grooming both his varsity eight and the Jay-Vee's for the race, which will be held on Lake Mendota over the mile and a quarter course. Vail has agreed to equip the visiting oarsmen with shells and oars. The Cardinal crews will continue their daily training until the 16th, when the season closes.

There has been no change in the Varsity eight since the withdrawal of the Badgers from the Poughkeepsie Regatta. Kinsbury is now a fixture at stroke, and Horfall is rowing in the bow. Morton holds forth in the coxswain's seat, and the other men under are Parks, T. Krouet, E. Kewer, S. Goodman, L. Lundie, S. and Capt. Orth, 2.

Joe Walcott, welterweight champion for eight years from 1915 to 1925, is now a porter at a New York theatre.

HITTING OF PITCHERS AIDS MICHIGAN CHAMPS

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(P)—Batting averages of the Big Ten baseball race have revealed two good reasons why Michigan won the championship with 11 straight victories and one defeat. Two Wolverine pitchers, Fred Asbeck and Bill McAfee, not only won most of the 31 games, but they hit above .400. Asbeck's batting average was .462 and McAfee's was .451.

All Want "Little Train"
Walter Johnson, Jr., only 12 years old, is much in demand as a pitcher by the kid players in Newark. One kid team sought his services but found to their disgust that their rivals already had him. They say he has his dad's fast ball.

Another Brother Act
The St. Louis Cards have a brother act now. Roland Douthitt, brother of Taylor Douthitt and a member of the University of California baseball team this year, joined the St. Louis team a few days ago. He is a third baseman.

Will Aid Knute Rockne
One of Knute Rockne's football assistants this fall will be John "Clipper" Smith, who captained the 1927 eleven and played guard.

London—(P)—Tommy Milligan, Scotland, knocked out Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, (9).

Their usual hard hitting, combined with good hurling by Greenz, enabled the Chicago Northwestern Railroad Co. team to hold its first position in the American Softball League Monday evening at First Ward field and the Railroaders took their fifth straight loop struggle without a defeat. In doing so they downed one of their hardest foes in the battle for the loop bunting, the Tuttle Press Co., and showed that crew from a triple second place tie, at 3-1 record, down to a fourth place.

The final score was 6-1 and Purdy, losing hurler, almost matched his rival on the mound but his support was ragged and many of the winning runs were aided by poor fielding. Batteries for the winners were Greenz and Rietz and for the losers Purdy and Punal. Railroad players claim that they owe part of their victory to the crew's "overleading" of Aiden Buchert, their strongest side-line backer.

Joe Walcott, welterweight champion for eight years from 1915 to 1925, is now a porter at a New York theatre.

Dairy Cattle

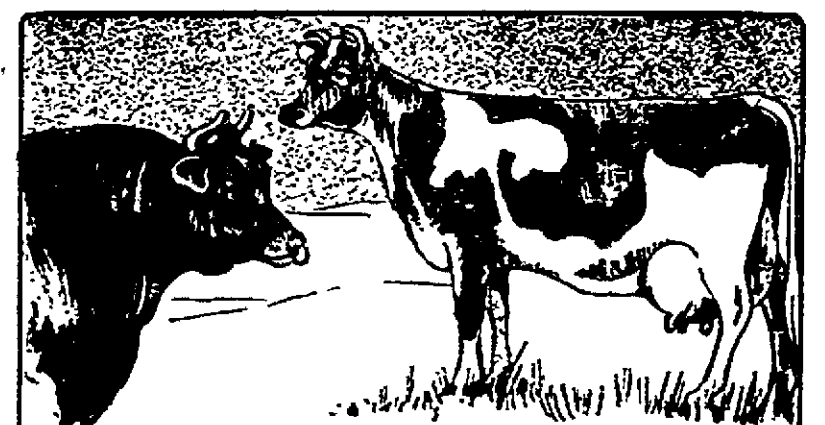

Cattle are divided into beef and dairy breeds. Guernseys and Jerseys come from the islands of the same names, in the English Channel, between England and France, and now are generally raised everywhere. Their milk is very rich. A Guernsey cow is pictured above.

Here the artist has sketched the head of a Guernsey bull. Notice the short horns and powerful neck.

Holsteins or Holstein-Friesians originated in the Netherlands. Here is sketched the head of a Holstein bull.

A Jersey cow and the head of a Jersey bull are shown above. Jerseys are favorite dairy cows, and their milk is used widely for babies. They are tan and white in coloring, while the Holstein is black and white. (To Be Continued)

FREE CHEST CLINIC IS WELL ATTENDED

Physicians and Nurses Put in a Busy Day at New London Monday

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The first day of the free chest clinic opened Monday morning and was attended by a crowd that kept visiting physicians and a staff of nurses busy until closing time. People of all classes and all ages, including many children past the age of six, were visitors at the improvised consultation offices in the council rooms of the city hall.

More and more people are taking advantage of the services of these specialists and the present clinic, which will continue for two days, has all the signs of becoming the best attended of its kind to be held here.

Nurses in charge state that wherever they have gone this spring crowds have been unusually large. Many important cases are brought to the notice of the physicians and this encouraging condition proves the worth of the movement, examining physicians state. One case alone brought to the notice of the attending force, last autumn was that of a man from this community who was found to be suffering from tuberculosis and was advised to enter a sanatorium. He reported today after a two month's complete rest. His condition was found to be excellent. Many such encouraging incidents prove to the Civic Improvement league, who sponsor the sale of Christmas seals, that the clinic is well worth while.

WISCONSIN DAIRY HERDS REQUIRE MANY ACRES OF PASTURE

TURNING STOCK ONTO THEM EARLY HINDERS SUMMER PRODUCTION

College of Agriculture Man Says Farmers Should Use Much Care

Madison—(AP)—More than eight and one-half million acres of Wisconsin farm land are in pasture, most of them permanent or native pastures, according to G. Borchardt, of the college of agriculture. For five months or more every year, farmers of the state depend upon their pastures for dairy products.

Frequently too much dependence is placed on grass alone as food for the dairy cow. Productivity of the pasture is frequently neglected.

One of the worst mistakes that a pasture can receive is through turning stock on it too early in the spring. Mr. Borchardt said. The first growth comes almost exclusively from the food stored in the roots, and if the first blades of grass are eaten off, the plant has no chance to use the energy of the sun and carbon dioxide of the air necessary for further growth.

Pastures are sometimes ragged in appearance, showing close grazing here and bunches of areas of long coarse grasses elsewhere. This is especially noticeable where horses and sheep are kept on a pasture. These animals are highly "selective" in their grazing habits. If grass is not kept down it becomes coarse, leaving tall and undesirable species of grass to smother the better pasture crops including white clover. Cattle are less fastidious in their grazing and eat the grasses more evenly over the field.

They also do not graze too close to the ground as do sheep and horses and are not likely to stunt the growth of the grass. Having in mind this fact, pasture is grazed advantageously, he said by having cattle running with other livestock.

Hogs are largely a problem by themselves. They need to be kept from rooting in the soil and in this way ruining the sod. While hogs have done well in Wisconsin experience on blue grass native pastures, they are not as well adapted to such pasture as are cattle.

Fertilizers and ground limestone are thought of usually only in connection with grains or legume crops. As a matter of fact, there are at the present stage of pasture neglect many pasture fields that would yield as high a return for a fertilizer investment as fields that are in a crop rotation.

Phosphorus has been removed every year under the intensive pasturing that is practiced at most farms, for even under livestock farming, depending on the manure for the upkeep of fertility, about 75 pounds of phosphorus are removed annually from the average Wisconsin farm.

Lime has also been removed constantly through trampling by most farms, for even under livestock farming, depending on the manure for the upkeep of fertility, about 75 pounds of phosphorus are removed annually from the average Wisconsin farm.

"The dropping of livestock or repeated applications of stable manure that are effective mainly as nitrogenous fertilizer, will not replenish the needed phosphorus or lime. These last elements are necessary to enable the clover to compete with the weeds and certain grasses that flourish on soil and are relatively undesirable. Clover needs lime and when growing abundantly supplies the nitrogen which is necessary for the blue grass. The face that white clover and other clovers gather the nitrogen of the air and incorporate it as nitrates in the soil accounts for the vigorous growth of blue grass which, in due time, crowds out clover."

"When the nitrates become somewhat exhausted and the blue grass is less vigorous," he said, "white clover tends to come back and does so more quickly if any applications of lime and phosphorus have been made. This practice incidentally tends to provide a balanced ration for livestock on pasture."

Here And There Among The Farmers--

BY W. F. WINSEY

Florian A. Becher, Greenville has received 2300 White Leghorn chicks from hatcheries in March and April and raised 92 per cent of his purchase. Of the lot, he shipped 70 cockerels to Milwaukee Thursday, and will ship 150 more this week. He expects to sell from 800 to 900 birds. The corn in one of his father's cornfields is coming along in good shape but the seed in another field has just been planted. Because grass in a 2-acre meadow did not look promising enough, Mr. Becher plowed the field and planted it to corn. He still has one silo filled with silage. His fields of small grain are in first class condition.

According to August Paul, town of Bear Creek, all the cornfields in his vicinity are planted. Owing to the cold weather and lack of rain the pastures are short and some of the clover fields have been planted with corn. The entire town needs warmer weather and rain to make the crops grow as they should. The planting of cabbage will begin about June 15 and the acreage will be about the same as last year.

"Put a small handful of commercial fertilizer on a hill of corn and the effect will be seen in a very few days in increased color and growth," said H. M. Allender, route 1, Shiocton, who has done much during the past several years in demonstrating how good yields of corn, small grains and cabbages can be grown on soils similar to his own. Fertilize a cornfield, skipping rows here and there and the corn in the rows missed will not be as thrifty nor more than half as tall as the corn in the rest of the field. The after effect of the use of fertilizer on corn rows may be seen in crops of grain and clover that follow the corn. If it had used no fertilizer on my cabbage last season, I would have had no cabbage at all. As it was, my cabbage was of good quality and yielded 15 tons to the acre. The yield of cabbage and corn is usually in proportion to the amount of fertilizer used. About six carloads of commercial fertilizer have arrived for use in this vicinity."

Test Shows Paper Mulch Is Big Aid To Farm Crops

Experiments of Dr. L. H. Flint (inset), federal physiologist, prove that paper mulch, vastly benefits field and garden crops. Mulched cotton plants (above), their maturity hastened, will be brought to production on the Arlington, Va., experimental farm, much farther north than thought possible ordinarily. Corn (below), growing through perforated mulch, gained over unmulched corn of the same age.

Aurora Hills, Va.—(AP)—Four years of careful experimentation prove conclusively to the department of agriculture that paper mulch has a definitely beneficial and important effect on crop development.

Dr. L. H. Flint, federal physiologist, under whose supervision the tests were made, says that in addition to increasing yields, paper mulch facilitates weeding between rows, and does away with the need of costly cultivation. In certain crops the power of germination has been increased, which results in greater yields; there has been a marked hastening of maturity, and a superior crop product in point of size, quality and cleanliness.

The government's acclaim of paper mulch is the result of experiments started in 1924, following its successful use in Hawaiian pineapple culture. It first came into prominence in 1914 as a control measure against rank weed growth on an unirrigated sugar plantation in Hawaii. By 1922 it had become such an acknowledged success that 90 percent of the Hawaiian pineapples were grown under mulch. Last year the industry paid approximately $500,000 for mulching paper.

While public declaration of success with American crops has been held in abeyance pending positive information, tests at government farms in Aurora Hills and elsewhere in Virginia have indicated from the first that response to mulch in this country is both certain and substantial.

Discussing the 1927 trials, Dr. Flint says the mulched plants were the first to germinate, being with certain crops four days in advance of the unmulched plants. The vegetative growth, with most crops, was appreciably in advance of crops on unmulched areas. Typical of this growth was the response of potatoes, in which the mulched plants came into flowering four to five days to two weeks earlier. Twelve different field and garden crops have been mulched in more than one season, and in each of the 33 trials involving these crops the mulch increased the yield.

An outstanding accomplishment with mulch is the production of cotton as far north as Washington. Impracticable under ordinary conditions, cotton farming was made possible through the power of mulch to hasten maturity. It is one of the possibilities, specialists say, that with mulch the cotton belt of the south may be extended. For many other crops the disadvantage of a late season may be overcome, their northern range widened, and in certain sections two crops may be grown in a single season.

Dr. Flint's experiments have to do only with the benefits of mulch, rather than with the economics of its use. The extent to which it will find a place in gardening and agriculture, he says, can be determined only through wide individual experimentation. Practical use will depend largely on

COMPARES TREELESS COUNTRY TO WORLD HAVING NO CHILDREN

Roosevelt Called It Good Citizenship to Help Preserve Our Forests

BY W. F. WINSEY
"A people without children would face a hopeless future; a country without trees is almost as hopeless; forests which are so used that they cannot renew themselves will soon vanish and with them all their benefits. When you help to preserve our forests or plant new ones you are acting the part of good citizens. Those are the words of Theodore Roosevelt."

For the reason that the people of this country have become conscious that through fires, waste and use, our forests are fast disappearing, nearly everyone is thinking about planting a tree and a large number of old and young have actually done it or are making preparations to do so.

Below are a few statements made by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association on the value of timber to the country, the amount of timber used yearly, the original acreage, the remaining acreage and length of time the remaining timber will last at the present rate of removal. The statements are followed by comments on the Wisconsin Forest Crop Law by the State Conservation Commission.

"Our perpetually renewable timber stands, supply the raw material for sixty major industries, build 300,000 houses annually, load 4,000,000 freight cars, give employment to 1,200,000 workers and find use in the manufacture of 4,000 different commodities."

"We still have 130 million acres of saw lumber is enough to serve our needs with economy for a generation or two longer."

"Some of the forest industries already have taken up the new problem of reforestation and to their work as harvesters of the crop have added the work of reforestation."

"The start that has been made in various sections of the country give promise that industrial forestry will do its part in perpetuating the lumber industry."

"The forests annually supply 37,000,000 board feet of saw lumber which more than 15,000 saw mills are busily engaged in manufacturing for 2,500,000 houses."
"Of pulp wood, 7,000,000 cords are used by more than 200 pulp and paper mills in the manufacture of our news, book, magazine, writing and wrapping paper, pastboard boxes, napkins, and a thousand and one other articles to meet our daily needs."
"Thousands of wood using plants require 15,000,000 feet of wood from which is produced all of the other wooden things which we can not do without, tennis rackets, golf sticks, baseball bats, and such like for sports, telephone poles, hewn ties, barrels, its economy as affected by labor requirements, the markets, the particular crops concerned, and climate conditions."

clothes, pins, tool handles, furniture, railway cars, and boddies, boxes and forth for the more serious affairs of life."

"We use annually 100,000,000 cords of wood."
Some information on The Forest Crop Law presented by the State Conservation Commission is as follows: "Administration of this act with power to call for information under oath is vested in the conservation commission."

"All lands under one ownership or control of not less than 100 acres, contiguous located, which are primarily valuable for the production of a forest crop and which are not agricultural, mineral, industrial, recreational or better suited for some other use are eligible for entry."

"Town officers and especially town chairmen and town assessors have an important duty to perform in the administration of this law. They should be willing to forsake what might appear to be momentary gain for their town in order to effect a sensible and proper classification of the lands within their own town for taxation purposes based upon the productive probabilities of such lands, with the thought of a large number of old and young have actually done it or are making preparations to do so."

LAIRD ORCHARD GIVES HEAVY CROPS YEARLY

Owner Gives It Close Attention and Is Well Repaid at Harvest Time

BY W. F. WINSEY

Stephensville—In the adoption and use of the method of cultivating apple orchards, pruning trees, fertilizing trees, spraying trees, grading apples, and keeping colonies of bees, in orchards, that have made the Door-co apple growers famous throughout this country, James H. Laird, is easily the pioneer in Outagamie county.

Mr. Laird set out the majority of the trees in his orchard 20 years ago. He began pruning his trees at once and spraying them with Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead 12 years ago. As long as he has had his orchard, he has been fertilizing his trees as he would any other crop on his farm with barnyard manure but of late years has supplemented his home fertilizer with 3-12-4 commercial fertilizer. He not only cultivates his orchard as a farmer cultivates his cornfield but he keeps the weeds and grass down about the trunks of the trees that, if permitted to grow, would draw heavily upon the plant food in the soil upon which a crop of apples depends. For pollinating, the apples blossoms, Mr. Laird has 25 colonies of bees at work in his orchard. In a short time he expects to sow sweet clover in his orchard to collect nitrogen from the air for his trees and also to serve as a mulch. His orchard shows as much intelligent care as the average orchard of Door-co.

As a result of the adoption of up-to-date methods of production, Mr. Laird gets the best quality of apples, big yields and a ready market either by the door or in Appleton. He has a long list of regular customers to be supplied with apples throughout the season. His chief varieties are North-western Greenings, Wealthies, Macintosh, Snows, Longfields, and White Crabs. His regular yield from this acre orchard is 400 bushels. After grading his apples he sells them by the bushel.

Guard the beauty of your windows in these three ways

Stretch a piece of ordinary window shade material lightly. Then persistent dust or dirt "film" will come off. BRENLIN has no blind rollers or screw-down devices.

THREE THINGS are of utmost importance in selecting window shades. They must give long wear; they must harmonize with the room color and furnishings; they must operate with ease and precision.

Now you can be sure of meeting all these requirements in your windows—with Brenlin mounted on Breneman Rollers.

Brenlin window shade material is strong and flexible—much like tightly-woven linen. It always hangs straight and smooth, does not develop cracks and pinholes like ordinary "filled" shades, and wears two to three times as long. Yet it costs only a few cents more.

Brenlin Stripes give wholly new artistic effects. Made of genuine Brenlin, with handsome self-woven stripes. Brenlin striped or plain, comes in a wide choice of beautiful colors—one to harmonize with every type and color of room.

Breneman Rollers are made with a highly developed spring mechanism which removes once and for all the sudden jamming or whirling of the roller.

THE LONG-WEARING WINDOW-SHADE MATERIAL

THE PETTIBONE-PEABODY CO.

This new ABC needs no wringer. A fast revolving SPINNER twirls the water out of a whole tubful of clothes, all at once, instead of a piece at a time. And does it in a minute without your help. Every piece comes out fluffy, airy, light—with each snap and button in its proper place—no crushed hooks to struggle with—no deep creases to iron out. Think of all the work this pleasing method saves.

This washer is NEW in more ways than one. It has PORCELAIN tub and spinning dryer—always lustrous, easy to clean, sweet smelling—a washer that can't warp, crack or chip.

SPINNER drying, AGITATOR washing and overloading PORCELAIN. Only ABC has all three. These, with a dozen other features, make this the washer that saves time, work and mending.

Surprisingly attractive price. Deferred payments. Steady performance. Long lasting. The finest achievement of Alcor Bros. Company (Est. 1909), Peoria, Illinois—one of America's first and foremost washing machine manufacturers.
